Summary

The thirty-third session of the Commission on Population and Development was held at United Nations Headquarters from 27 to 30 March 2000. Its central theme was population, gender and development.

The documents before the Commission included a report on world population monitoring, focusing on the theme of the session. The report included a historical review of population and gender issues in the global agenda, and also provided information on selected aspects of population, gender and development, covering topics such as family formation, health and mortality (including human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS)), ageing, internal migration and international migration. Other reports covered the inter-sessional meeting of the Bureau of the Commission; the monitoring of population programmes; flows of financial resources for assisting in the implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development; the special session of the General Assembly for the review and appraisal of the implementation of the Programme of Action; and the programme of work of the Population Division of the United Nations Secretariat in the field of population. The Commission also considered and took note of the draft medium-term plan of the Population Division for the period 2002-2005.

The Commission considered follow-up actions to the recommendations of the International Conference on Population and Development (agenda item 3) and adopted a resolution concerning a gender perspective in the research and analyses conducted by the Population Division. Concerning the work of the Commission during the next quinquennium (agenda item 5), the Commission reaffirmed that population, environment and development would be the special theme for 2001, and decided that future special themes would be reproductive rights and reproductive health in 2002, and population, education and development in 2003.

The Commission approved the provisional agenda for its thirty-fourth session and recommended to the Economic and Social Council the adoption of a draft decision in which the Council would approve the provisional agenda.

Special themes for the Commission on Population and Development in the years 2000-2004

22. At the 7th meeting, on 30 March, the Vice-Chairman of the Commission, Antonio Golini (Italy), introduced a draft decision entitled "Special themes for the Commission on Population and Development in the years 2001-2003" (E/CN.9/2000/L.5), which was submitted on the basis of informal consultations.

25. After the adoption of the draft decision, the Vice-Chairman made the following statement reflecting the understanding reached during the informal consultations:

(a) With regard to the special theme for the thirty-fifth session of the Commission in 2002, "Reproductive rights and reproductive health, with special references to human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS)", it had been agreed that the report on World Population Monitoring should also give special attention to adolescents, sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) and family planning;

(b) It had been agreed that preparation of the next quinquennial review and appraisal of the progress made in achieving the goals and objectives of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development, such a review and appraisal having been called for by the General Assembly in its resolution 49/128, should be discussed under agenda item 5 at the thirty-fourth session of the Commission;

(c) With regard to an international event on population and development to be held in 2004, delegations had concluded that it was too early to consider it at this time; and some delegations felt that a final decision could be made at the thirty-fifth session of the Commission. However, there was not yet an agreement in terms of the outcome of such an event. Individual Governments would need to consider the key actions to be adopted at other quinquennial reviews; and Governments would need time to reflect on all the quinquennial reviews so as to allow them to give any such event in 2004 a sense of purpose and clarity.
